

SEMI-WEEKLY COWBOY KENTUCKIAN

CHAS. M. MACHAM, Editor.

TUESDAY, DECEMBER 18, 1888

HOPKINSVILLE, KENTUCKY.

A live and growing city of 5,000 inhabitants, situated in a county of 1,000. The Louisville and Nashville has two lines of railroad in the county and the people have recently voted to build new roads. Largest tobacco growing county in the world. Wheat, corn, hay, coal, live stock and fruits produced for export in large quantities. The city has four banks with an aggregate capital of $1,000,000. A planing mill and wagon factory, three carriage factories, lime factory, tobacco manufactory, two foundries, three brickyards, brown factory, steam laundry, one factory, two large flouring mills in the city and several in the county. Splendid driving park and fine opera house. Five theatres catering in Hopkinsville. Building and Loan Association, Commercial Club, a telephone exchange, numbered streets and houses and city lighted by gas. Manufactured streets and town sidewalks all over the city. Eleven churches, two colleges, a high school and the local system of public schools, white and colored, in the State. Western Kentucky Lumber Association with a reputation of 50, two miles east of the city. A 100,000 acre tract with town clock in the dome. A live fire department and a company of State guards. Little River rises within a few miles of the city. The city has an adequate supply of water for all purposes. Real estate low and rents cheap. Fine opening for wooden mill, pork packing establishment, fruit canner, hayrack and many other enterprises. Climate mild and invigorating and exceedingly healthful.

Kilrain has accepted Sullivan's challenge and the two heavy-weights will pummel each other for $10,000 a side.

The Democratic Caucus has decided to vote for the admission of all territories excepting Utah, Arizona and Idaho.

One hundred barrels of J. W. Tate's whisky, attached by the State, was sold Friday at Louisville for 80 cents per gallon.

The body of Irene Hawes, the third victim of Dick Hawes, the Birmingham murderer, has been found in the lake near where the wife's body was discovered.

There seems to be no doubt that Stanley has been captured by the rebels in the Sudan and England is very much exercised over his probable fate.

The next President of Switzerland will doubtless make a ringing inaugural address when he goes into office. His name is Hammer and he ought to be a good man to deal with tariff tax.

Senator Riddleberger threatens to resign by Jan. 1st on account of a quarrel with Senator Ingalls, and let the Governor of Virginia appoint a Democratic Senator to serve till the 4th of March.

Mr. Sims Black was married to Miss Jennie Cobb, at Henderson, and in the afternoon of the same day the bride sailed out with a young farmer. Black was sold and he has acknowledged the Corn and applied for a divorce.

The House Democratic caucus on Thursday night adopted a resolution for the admission of Dakota, either as one or two states as the people may decide, and for the admission also of the territories of Montana, Washington and New Mexico.

A mother with her little child was passing the court house last Thursday when the little one looked up at the freshly gilded eagle over the door and said: "Oh look, mamma, is not that an angel?" "No indeed, child," replied the mother, "angels are never found about court houses."

West Virginia elects Fleming, Democrat, Governor by a very narrow plurality and two of the four Democratic candidates are elected to Congress by the skin of their teeth. The majority for Cleveland is about 550 and the Legislature is Democratic by three or four majority.

The following advertisement appeared in the Richmond (Va.) Times of December 3:

Wanted—A wash lady moving in the very best colored society desires a position in a fashionable family with full possession of the back building and privilege of daughter taking music and French. Address Mrs. L. C. P. O. city.

John Oakes walked into a bank at San Bernardino, Cal., the other day and deposited a piece of lead in the body of the cashier E. H. Morse, which cost Mr. Morse his life. The official refused to cash a check presented by Oakes until he was identified, which led to a shooting affray in which both parties were shot. Oakes was badly wounded, but will recover.

It is stated upon pretty good authority that Mr. J. G. Metcalf, at present Division Superintendent of the Alabama branches of the L. & N. railroad, will succeed Mr. J. T. Harahan, who has resigned his position as General Manager of the L. & N. system, to take effect January 1. Mr. Metcalf has been with the L. & N. for twenty years and has gradually risen from the place of operator on the road. He is one of the best men in the service of the road he has served so long and faithfully.

Colorado, the Ute chief, who has given the government so much trouble, died last Wednesday at the White River reservation in Colorado. He first came into prominence through the Meeker massacre in 1879. When his death became known the squaws of his tribe cut off their hair and made loud lamentations, and thirty or forty horses were killed that their spirits might accompany the great chief to the happy hunting grounds.

SCHOOLS AND TEACHERS.

Interesting Information About County Educational Matters.

After a great deal of trouble and work, the Kentucky is able this week to present some school points and statistics which will be read with interest by all interested in the cause of common school education. Through the kindness and patient courtesy of the obliging county superintendent, Prof. Renshaw, we are enabled to give nearly a complete and accurate list of the teachers:

At C. P. church, Rev. A. C. Bidwell preached in the morning on "The Lamb of God" and in the evening on "The Perseverance of Saints." A protracted meeting will be begun in about two weeks.

Antiquity of Bee-Keeping.

Bee-keeping is as old as agriculture. The instincts and social economy of bees have engaged the attention of philosophers of every age, and their perfect policy of government, and provident conduct have supplied abundant material to poets and moralists of every people. The proverb, "where the bee is there is honey," is of ancient application, signifying that where industry prevails there will be riches. Before the first great lawgiver of the world received the tables of stone, there was made to a people who should obey Divine instructions the promise of a land flowing with milk and honey. Bees are represented among the hieroglyphs of ancient Assyria and Egypt, where they are made to symbolize subjects who yield obedience to their King, and never revolt from his dictates. The poets of old Greece found frequent occasion to allude to the interesting characteristics of the honey producer. Aristotle gives a zoological description of three kinds of bees, and the poet Virgil speaks of two kinds. There are now many distinct races and numerous hybrid varieties. The most important of these are the Italian, or yellow bee, the German, or black bee, the Cyprian, the Egyptian, the amiable Carniolan of the Rhetian Alps, the beautiful Caucasian, the Syrian, and the stingless bee of South and Central America.—London Agricultural Gazette.

Before the first great lawgiver of the world received the tables of stone, there was made to a people who should obey Divine instructions the promise of a land flowing with milk and honey. Bees are represented among the hieroglyphs of ancient Assyria and Egypt, where they are made to symbolize subjects who yield obedience to their King, and never revolt from his dictates. The poets of old Greece found frequent occasion to allude to the interesting characteristics of the honey producer. Aristotle gives a zoological description of three kinds of bees, and the poet Virgil speaks of two kinds. There are now many distinct races and numerous hybrid varieties. The most important of these are the Italian, or yellow bee, the German, or black bee, the Cyprian, the Egyptian, the amiable Carniolan of the Rhetian Alps, the beautiful Caucasian, the Syrian, and the stingless bee of South and Central America.—London Agricultural Gazette.

Capt. C. N. Pendleton, formerly of Pembroke, has been elected city attorney of Owensboro.

Superintendent Renshaw has received a supply of the common school laws, for the use of county teachers.

An important meeting of the Commercial Club will be held to-night. All of the members are requested to attend.

An unknown tramp jumped from the Henderson bridge Sunday morning and at last accounts his body had not been recovered.

P. T. Barnum is beginning to send marked copies of papers to this section, which means that his show will be along next year.

Send your orders to J. S. Brown Springfield, Tenn., for pure Tennessee and Kentucky whiskeys and apple and peach brandies. Prices of whiskeys $1.50, $1.75, $2.00 and $2.25, according to age. Brandies $2 and $2.50.

The Old Fellows' memorial services Friday night was quite an event with the local lodge. Rev. J. W. Venable delivered the address and Mr. W. F. Randle read the memorial service.

E. W. B. Brewer, of Fairview, has been called upon by a numerous signed petition, to become a candidate to represent Todd county in the next Legislature, Mr. Sirother Banks, of Tipton, is also a probable candidate.

Robert West went to Nashville, last Thursday night where he and Miss Fannie Pilpen were quietly married at the residence of the bride's parents. Mr. West and his bride arrived in the city Sunday night and will reside here in future.

A number of city subscribers had their Kentucky stolen Friday morning. Perhaps the thieves don't know that when they steal a paper containing $10 worth of news, like the Kentucky, they lay themselves liable to prosecution for grand larceny, which is a penitentiary offense.

Dr. J. H. Woolsey, of the Sinking Fork neighborhood, has leased his farm for three years, as was recently announced in this paper, and will move this week to Glasgow Junction where he will engage in the practice of medicine. We recommend Dr. Woolsey as a good doctor and a clever gentleman.

About fifty persons went to Madisonville Friday to take part in and witness the entertainment by the Hopkinsville Dairy Maids' Company. The performance was a decided success, financially and otherwise. The audience was large and attentive and the young ladies one and all acquitted themselves in handsome style.

Walter Campbell, Emmet Cooper, Major Woodruff, Jas. Cooper, Oswin Steinhauser, Harry Tandy, Harry Bryan, and Bob Cook accompanied by Misses Mary Radford, Mamie Clark, Edna Radford, Lucy Prince and Nannie Barnes attended a party given at Jim Radford's near Pembroke, Friday night. The young people went out on the 5 o'clock train and returned at 10 the next day.

The Buffalo Express of N. Y. has this to say of the play to be presented by McCreary at the Opera House Thursday night: "The old-time drama, 'The Black Flag,' drew a crowded house at Bunnell's Theatre last evening. It seems to have lost none of its attractiveness, and the audience applauded Harry Glyndon, who suffers for his villainous brother's crime, hissed the villain, and laughed at the funny Hebrew convict, Sim Lazarus. The lockstep march furnished amusement for the boys, and when the final court room scene restored the convict to his bride and doomed the villain brother to the Portland prison, the applause was quite hearty. All the members of the company play their parts well and big houses will undoubtedly be in order during the week."

Conspicuous among our advertisements in this issue is that of J. J. Crusman, wholesale and retail grocer, Clarksville, Tenn. Mr. Crusman has been in business so long, and is so well and favorably known that further comment is hardly necessary, as every man, woman and child, within a radius of forty miles of his place of business, is either familiar with the name or has purchased goods from his house at some time or other, and it is a fact worth relating that no one was ever known not to be pleased with their goods bought of him. This season he has supplied his commodious store house with every variety of goods in the grocery line and his stock of supplies for the Christmas trade is just immense, and it is a real pleasure to hand in one's order as you please in getting every article on your table and at prices as low as they can be had. His stock of liquors, including the finest wines, champagnes &c., is the largest ever brought to the place, and comprises every variety of drinkables from the year old to the aged with prices not fancy but strictly standard. You can rely on what Mr. Crusman tells you about his goods and this is a fact well worth knowing when going to make your purchases.

They Fractured the Peace.

Jerry Smith, col., was arrested Saturday, charged with disorderly conduct, and immediately had a trial, which resulted in a fine of $5 and costs. He arranged affairs and left the city promising to behave himself in future.

Harry Hucker, col., for a breach of the peace, committed Friday, was fined $10 and costs, Saturday, in the City Court.

Another Appropriate Lesson.

Ed Vans, col., who, in an attempt to rescue a prisoner from special officer, J. W. Williams, at Pembroke, Nov. 10th, and who struck Mr. Williams on the head with a brick or rock, inflicting a bad wound, was tried last Thursday, by a jury, and given six months at hard labor. He was taken to jail to serve out the sentence of the law but escaped yesterday from workhouse keeper D. T. Brown.

ACCIDENTAL KILLING.

Death of Mrs. O. B. Griffin, an Estimable Lady.

CROFTON, Ky., Dec. 16, '88.—Less Keys, a son of Richard Keys, was accidentally shot and killed by Mr. Pern Vance at 8:30 a. m., to-day, Keys had gone over to Mr. Vance's to get his hair cut and a young man by the name of Marquess, who boards with Mr. Vance had left his pistol on the sewing machine and young Keys asked Mr. Vance to show him how it revolved and while Vance was revolving it, it was discharged, the ball entering Keys chest about one and a half inches to the right of the base of the heart. He lived about thirty minutes. The deceased was about fourteen years old and was a bright and industrious boy; always ready and willing to do any work. To his father and many friends we extend our condolences.

W. A. M. Brewer's child has been very ill for several days.

Ed, Dec 13, 1888, Mrs. Sophia A. Griffin, wife of O. B. Griffin. The deceased was a member of the Christian church; she was loved and esteemed by all who knew her. All that was mortal rests under the sod near her earthly home and her spirit has gone to that beautiful city whose builder and maker is God. She leaves many friends and relatives to mourn their loss.

TO-NIGHT'S PERFORMANCE.

Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde Will be the Event of the Season.

The New York Mirror, speaking of the late production of "The Strange Case of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," which will be produced at the Opera House to-night.

"The third act has the most powerful dramatic situation of the piece. Dr. Jekyll having determined to order to be paid to the stockholder, out of the net earnings for the six months ending Nov. 30, 1888, and the same payable Jan. 1, 1889, at the office of the company. It was also recommended that the balance be reserved."

At the regular semi-annual meeting of the Board of Directors of the Crescent Milling Company, held at their office a five per cent (5%) instead of the usual dividend was ordered to be paid to the stockholders out of the net earnings for the six months ending Nov. 30, 1888, and the same payable Jan. 1, 1889, at the office of the company. It was also recommended that the balance be reserved.

Tragedy at Earlington.

Tim Harrington and William Sanders, two young men aged about 18 years, were out hunting near Earlington Saturday and while returning home stopped to rest. While sitting on a fence young Harrington attempted to lift his gun over, when the hammer caught and the gun was discharged, shooting Sanders in the head, causing instant death.

Young Harrington immediately went to town and surrendered, stating the facts as above, which were proven at the Coroner's inquest held that evening. Public sympathy is with Harrington, who is nearly crazed over the sad occurrence.

TO PRESERVE THE SOFTNESS OF FLANNEL GARMENTS, FOLLOW CAREFULLY THESE DIRECTIONS FOR WASHING.

Dissolve thoroughly in boiling water some Ivory Soap, shaved fine. Add sufficient warm water to wash the flannels in one by one. Don't rub any soap on the flannels, but knead them well in the solution. Don't rinse them in plain water, use a fresh supply of the solution, warm, and well lathered, for the purpose. Don't wring tightly with the hands, use a clothes-wringer. The freer from water you get these garments the softer they will be. Hang them out immediately, if the weather will permit; if not, dry before the fire. If left to stand wet, the flannel will certainly shrink. Never wash flannel in water too hot to bear your hand in. Never rinse them in cold water. Always use Ivory Soap, it is the best, much experience has proved this.

A WORD OF WARNING.

There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the Ivory," they are NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

NEW YORK FASHIONS.

Things That Are Absolutely the Very Newest and Most Chic of Their Kind.

Another London fancy in the gowns that are now being manufactured for winter wear is for cloth dresses of that peculiar shade called sometimes "to the great delectation of the funny paragon," "elephant's breath." This is trimmed with the yellowest of yellow-brown outer, but it is a brave woman who wears it, it may be remarked.

A pretty steamer-down to be worn by a New York girl in a trip across the ocean, is of dark-blue serge and has a skirt laid in narrow side pleats from the waist down. There is a long double-breasted coat which reaches the skirt's edge at the back, and is cut off at the waist in front. It opens over a draped waistcoat of scarlet crepe, and has blue buttons set on each side of the front and collar, lapels and cuffs of blue velvet.

The color of colors this winter will be as it has been during the summer—green in all its shades; the lighter tints, of course, reserved for the ball and tea gown, while for street wear sage, olive, bottle, Lincoln, moss and ashen green will be worn combined with brown, tan or gray. The color which comes next in popularity is canary. That clear, pale shade of yellow will be seen in bonnets, in housewears, and, above all, in the little ball-gowns of the young women.

The polonaise and redingote increase in favor, and in striped materials are very becoming to full figures. They are drawn back slightly, the corners forming long points of drapery, and the drapery in the back is very slight or else absent altogether, the long seams being continued down the back with the fulness plaited in beneath them. For young and slight women the redingote coat, with its big buttons, high collar and full-trimmed waistcoat and huge buttons, takes the place of the redingote.

The latest addition to the new dresses is the sash. Not only are immense sashes worn on every thing, especially to outline the edge of a pointed bodice and then be tied in an enormous bow in the back, but they are also draped later, the sash draperies, of Bond Street, London, goes a point beyond any thing hitherto seen on this side, and is absolutely the very newest and most chic of its kind. This sash is prodigious, and is not only of that vivid red which is vulgarly known as "red fire," but on it were broad bands of magenta, blue and bright blue. That sounds pretty bad, but the effect is in reality tremendously avenger.

A charming gown worn at Lenox by a newly-landed New Yorker who has been replenishing her wardrobe in Paris had a skirt of tan-colored crepe in the waistcoat plaited from the waist. It had no drapery but a double-breasted coat of pale blue brocade. The waistcoat was of tan-colored brocade, a deep ruffle of it falling below the folds of tan sash that defined the waist in a long point. This lace was carried up inside the high collar of the coat and fell over the outside in another deep ruffle. There were big, snatched, pearl buttons enameled in blue on either edge of the coat-fronts, and they were also on the wide cuffs turned back from the wrists, where were deep ruffles.

Alex Ashby, Titus Merritt and Ed. Meyer, colored miners, were killed by an explosion in the Reinecke coal mines at Madisonville on Saturday.

NEW YORK FASHIONS.

Hints and Suggestions on Themes Pleasant to the Fair Sex.

Pale olive, fawn and mushroom tints are at present in high favor. They are refined, cool looking and adapted to almost any occasion. A stylish dress is made of mushroom-colored silk-warp Henrietta cloth. The dress called a Directoire was cut in redingote fashion, with a high collar, and the sleeves puffed at the shoulders, and each side of the front, covering the large Directoire collar and forming the entire vest over which the garment opened. The skirt was of pale mushroom-colored watered silk.

French mohair is in great use this season, and many really elegant gowns are made of it for visiting, traveling and the promenade. Mohair silk is almost exclusively its trimming, and often there is more of the latter fabric in the costume than of the mohair. Black alpaca and black moire are also popular. Dove-gray mohair with a deeper shade of watered silk forming the skirt, and another, for like wear, was made of fawn-colored mohair with skirt, vest, and mousquetaire cuffs of white moire, these almost covered with fawn-colored and white silk galleon.

A pretty toilet worn by a lady artist at a reception recently was made of cream-colored brocade, and the sleeves very becoming to the wearer, who is blessed with a superabundance of flesh, for they were made of a kind of network, with lines of gold running down it. This is a very good idea for those to whom nature has been overkind, for the straight lines running from shoulder to waist take off a great deal of the look of too solid flesh without the aid of the surgeon.

Zephyr gingham, French muslin, India lawns, chambrays and dainty canopies abound on every side. This sounds very much like economy, but the impression that fabrics that cost but little a yard tend to reduce expense is a fallacy of which we have all had convincing proofs. Simple cotton dresses cost but a trifle at the shops, but get them to the modistes, leave her to "garish" them, pay her bill of double and sometimes triple the cost of the "simple cotton." Let the dress pass during the course of the season through the laundress's hands, and it will be changed into a piece of tissue, the expensive "dress" which, true to former traditions, the mind still associates with a washing dress, is a delusion and a snare.—N. Y. Post.

THE WORKING WORLD.

Industrial Notes Collected from Home and Foreign Papers.

As a general thing shoemakers' profits are better in this country than in England. An American shoemaker can make at a cost of himself 66 cents what an English shoemaker has to pay $1 for, while in manufacture of ladies' shoes the expenditure of 25 cents in this country is equivalent to that of 34 cents in England.

A chance for mechanical genius is offered by a railway department in Switzerland, which has issued an order compelling all engines traveling through the railway department to have a speed indicator which must mark correctly the variations of speed. A good market is open to whoever can furnish the best article.

Store-keepers and janitors, who have their brass ornaments, railings and signs polished at the expense of some money and considerable hard labor, can now move their much-troubled simply dipping the brass into a liquid composed of equal parts of nitric acid and water. The brass should not remain in the acid more than a few moments, and then should be carefully rinsed in running water.

The well-digger's vocation is not without its dangers, and serious accidents frequently happen to the men who follow it. A Nebraska man met with a singular piece of good luck while at the bottom of a well in Norden the other day. A bucket was lowered to him when the rope broke. He saw the bucket coming and braced himself in the center of the well. The bottom of the bucket struck his head and broke into fragments, while the rim and the hoops slipped over his body and buried themselves in the ground at his feet.

An English inventor has perfected an appliance which will be of great value to firemen. It is a respirator with an India-rubber mouth-piece, and is designed to enable the wearer to breathe and work in comfort in dense smoke and poisonous gases. The device is fastened securely by a band around the head and a flange lying between the teeth and lips, while a small projecting piece may be grasped by the teeth. The air inhaled is drawn through a series of cotton filters, containing wet sponges, cotton wool, dampened with glycerine and animal charcoal. The filters are provided with valves so that the breath expired from the lungs is sent direct to the external atmosphere. Spectacles, with India-rubber rims, fitting tightly to the cheek and brow, protect the eyes.

In Michigan a citizen one day was enthused by the news that he had become an heir to part of his grandfather's property. In a few days the citizen received an envelope containing seventeen cents.

WHITE'S CREAM VERMIFUGE is the best for children.

market, the dose being small, it is the cheapest. It is in no way purgative, and does not require to be followed by the nauseous dose of castor oil or other purgative medicine. Full directions on every bottle. For sale by H. B. Garner.

D. S. Troutman, West Fork P. O., Reynolds County, Mo., writes as follows: "I sold one bottle of WHITE'S CREAM VERMIFUGE to my neighbor, Mr. Allen Moore. He gave the medicine to three children, and it brought from them fully 300 worms. This, I think, is worth calling attention to the friends of children and enemies to worms. I will soon order more of the VERMIFUGE." For sale by H. B. Garner.
